Carl-Philipp von Willich, born 12.10.2000 worked at LocalBini AG from September 2021 to January 2022 as a Student Consultant for our strategy development.

LocalBini is the go-to platform for cultural and leisure activities in European cities with locals. All experiences offered on the platform are unique. They are developed and led by locals who have gone through a quality-assured selection process. In 2022, LocalBini will launch its latest technological innovation: LocalBini GO, the possibility to live experiences in 3D and 360° via livestream or on-demand.

Mr. von Willich's activities essentially included:

- Development of a market entry and growth strategy for LocalBini GO.
- Conceptualization of different, promising business models for LocalBini GO
- Conducting a market analysis for a 3D and 360° video platform
- Planning and conducting market research with potential customers, producers and partner companies
- Managing the communication and coordination between the consulting team, LocalBini and the university.

We have found Mr. von Willich to be an exceptionally committed, results-oriented and eager to learn employee. In the scope of his tasks, he managed to apply his theoretical knowledge to a practical task in an outstanding way. Combined with his excellent analytical skills and his creativity, he was able to produce enormously valuable results in the form of well-founded recommendations for action. These have been instrumental for us to design and position LocalBini Go in the most promising way.

In addition, Mr. von Willich was always willing to go the extra mile and was highly motivated to voluntarily support the founding team in further activities, such as helping in the acquisition of new investors or partner companies.

Mr. von Willich is leaving our company after the successful completion of the consulting project. We would like to thank him for his excellent work and are happy to highly recommend him for any positions concerning strategy, consulting or startups. Furthermore, we wish him every success in his future career.
