

Internship reference

Anton Belobokov, born on August 9th 2004 in Germany, joined Stern Stewart & Co. at our office in Munich for an internship from April 1st until June 10th 2026.

Stern Stewart & Co. is the independent strategy boutique. Advising clients in strategy, transaction, performance and transformation. Cutting edge in the application of technology and AI. A truly entrepreneurial team of independent thinking personalities. To create a striking impact for our clients and society at large.

During his internship, Anton worked within a team of consultants on a client assignment in the automotive industry. He supported the end-to-end process workstream, with a particular focus on process redesign and the optimization of relevant approaches and tools across key subprocesses. His tasks included the following aspects:

- » Conceptualizing and developing an AI-based requirements management agent designed to translate complex client requirements into clear, context-driven explanations for engineers
 - Setting up and implementing AI workflows within LibreChat and Microsoft Copilot
 - Establishing an internal document database to serve as the backend for the agent
 - Preparing a structured client handover of the complete model
 - Creating engineering guidance to help users understand the implications of requirements with the support of the AI agent
- » Developing concrete improvements within newly designed end-to-end processes as part of broader professionalization initiatives
 - Conceptualizing detailed workflows for key processes within requirements management
 - Developing new process steps to optimize and standardize prototype management
 - Preparing board-level workshop and discussion presentations
- » Supporting the preparation of a client submission in the context of a governmental tender during the Request for Information (RFI) phase

Working with Anton was a pleasure. Deep theoretical understanding, wide general knowledge, very positive attitude towards any kind of work, high degree of motivation, and perfectionism are just a few of his positive characteristics. We have known Anton to be a very reliable, proactive, and competent member of the team. Due to his friendliness, helpfulness, and sense of humor, he was very well accepted by clients, superiors, and other consultants. He performed all given tasks and assignments to our utmost satisfaction.

We thank Anton for the successful working relationship and would strongly appreciate his application for a position at Stern Stewart & Co. after finishing his studies.
