Católica Lisbon School of Business & Economics

To the Admissions Committee

I am pleased to recommend Marcel Halilovic, whom I supervise directly in my dual role as Managing Director and Head of Procurement at GST Gesellschaft für Sicherheitstechnik GmbH, a company specialized in security technology solutions. I have worked closely with Mr. Halilovic over the last 18 months and can therefore assess his performance, development, and professional maturity with a high degree of confidence.

Mr. Halilovic distinguishes himself through comprehensive and multi-faceted professional expertise combined with exceptional analytical ability. He demonstrates an extremely rapid power of comprehension, allowing him to quickly gain clarity even in complex or unfamiliar situations. He identifies the most relevant issues efficiently, structures problems rigorously, and translates analysis into practical, implementable solutions. His thinking is both precise and forward-looking, consistently reflecting an understanding of strategic interdependencies rather than isolated operational tasks.

Mr. Halilovic approaches his responsibilities in a highly proactive manner and shows a strong identification with his work, the objectives of his role, and the organization as a whole. His motivation and willingness to perform at a consistently high level are exceptional. He takes ownership beyond formal expectations and demonstrates a pronounced commitment to delivering meaningful and sustainable results.

In addition to his core responsibilities, Mr. Halilovic takes an active leadership role in onboarding new employees and supporting vocational trainees. He provides structured guidance, sets clear expectations, and ensures a smooth integration into the organization. This role requires not only subject-matter competence but also empathy, communication skills, and a strong sense of responsibility – qualities Mr. Halilovic consistently demonstrates in his daily work.

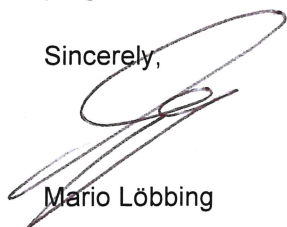

Beyond his people-related leadership responsibilities, Mr. Halilovic has also assumed project leadership roles in the area of Business Continuity Management. In this context, he structured complex requirements, coordinated cross-functional inputs, and ensured reliable execution in a domain where clarity, foresight, and accountability are critical. He remains focused, analytical, and solution-oriented even under pressure, and is regarded as a dependable point of reference in projects of high operational relevance.

Mr. Halilovic works with a consistently high level of focus, precision, and efficiency, combining speed with an exceptional awareness of quality and responsibility. His work is characterized by outstanding results in both quality and quantity, and he performs his tasks with a level of reliability and accuracy that can be fully depended upon. His ability and willingness to learn are excellent; he adapts quickly to new subject areas, absorbs complex information efficiently, and applies newly acquired knowledge with confidence and sound judgement.

From my perspective, Mr. Halilovic is exceptionally well suited for the MSc in Management with a specialization in Strategy, Entrepreneurship & Impact at Católica Lisbon School of Business & Economics. He combines analytical depth, leadership potential, entrepreneurial initiative, and resilience, making him well prepared for the academic demands of the program and a valuable contributor to its collaborative learning environment.

I recommend Marcel Halilovic without reservation and am confident that he will add significant value to your program.

Sincerely,

Mario Löbbing
