

Job Description – Intern

About us

Akereos Capital is an investment banking firm focused exclusively on the energy transition. The firm counts circa 35 executives in the London HQ and is currently building and expanding its Hamburg branch. The firm is active across four complementary pillars, namely M&A, debt advisory, intermediate capital solutions and power markets and has completed north of €4bn of transactions in 2023.

About the role

The successful candidate will join a team of highly experienced, passionate professionals with extensive deal record in debt and equity advisory, structured finance and private equity investments.

Requirements

- At least four semesters in business administration, financing and economics with excellent grades.
- Preferably first experience gained from previous internships, ideally Investment Banking, Corporate Finance/M&A, or Consulting.
- Quick grasp of the analysis of complex issues and ability to work independently within a team.
- Profound knowledge of Microsoft Office (especially Excel and PowerPoint)

Candidates are expected to be native German speakers and to be proficient in English.

Responsibilities

- Financial Modelling: Support in developing and maintaining complex financial models for equity valuation, and debt sizing.
- Assist in the preparation of client presentations and pitch books to support business development efforts.
- Market Research: Stay abreast of industry trends, regulatory changes, and market developments.

Benefits

- Opportunity to take on responsibility in a flat organisational structure
- Exciting range of tasks and deals, with a steep learning curve
- Strong team spirit, full support from all team members

The role is available from April 2025. However, consideration will be given to accommodate the timeline of the right candidate.
