To whom it may concern

Ludwig & Co. is a dynamic corporate finance advisory firm. Since its formation in 2012, we act as an entirely independent adviser. Our clients can expect advisory services of highest quality and excellent process management. Our services focus on: advice in Mergers & Acquisitions, sourcing and structuring of equity and debt investments, advice in capital market issues and financial restructuring.

Our team of corporate finance and private equity specialists can build on an excellent track record of successful international transactions. We have access to numerous corporations, banks, financial sponsors, and family offices worldwide.

Robert Stangl, born on June 16, 2004, was employed at Ludwig & Co. as an intern from February 01, 2025 until April 30, 2025.

In the course of the internship, Robert worked as an integral part of our advisory team on ongoing projects and marketing assignments in various industries (esp. B2B consumer goods, retail, technology, healthcare). His tasks included in particular:

- Compilation of in-depth company profiles as well as analysis of various corporations, including assessment of financial status, market conditions, capital market perception and strategic positioning
- Industry and market analysis with focus on market composition (size, growth, products, competitive environment, etc.), market trends and drivers as well as assessment of key players (market position, strategy, earnings, etc.)
- Benchmarking and current trading updates for ongoing projects
- Participation in sell side projects and management of datarooms
- Contribution to development of a restructuring concept

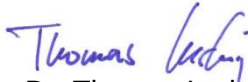

We found Robert to be a very intelligent individual with the ability to comprehend given tasks quickly. Working on his own or in a team, he continuously showed initiative and a very good attitude towards work. Even complex tasks he delivered in a clear and methodical manner.

Robert has proven to be particularly open and willing to learn and presented himself as being flexible, hardworking, and diligent to the highest degree. Moreover, he demonstrated excellent analytical and quantitative skills and made efficient use of databases. Robert showed very high attention to detail and executed his tasks always to our fullest satisfaction.

Robert always worked in a friendly, reliable, and co-operative manner. Through his pleasant personality he was appreciated as a team member by the management, his superiors, and his colleagues.

We would like to thank Robert for his valuable contribution and would happily welcome him back to the team.
