Activity Overview

During the internship, Mr. Doležal was actively involved in one ongoing sell-side M&A process and supported three additional transactions in preparation across Germany, Austria, and Switzerland within the insurance brokerage, broker pool and MGA sectors, covering Commercial and Private Lines in P&C, Life and Health insurance.

His responsibilities included, among others:

- Transactions
 - Supported preparation of financial factbooks and business forecasts, including financial statement consolidation and translation into business segment-led management accounts, EBITDA bridge preparation (normalization, pro forma and forward-looking adjustments), as well as strategic growth and cost lever modelling

- Supported analysis of operational and portfolio KPIs, including revenue composition, client and carrier diversification, commission structures and portfolio development metrics
 - Supported preparation of transaction marketing materials, including teaser, CIM and management presentations
 - Supported preparation of buyer long- / shortlists, including research and fit assessment
 - Supported Virtual Data Room coordination and managed information flow between client, legal advisors and transaction teams
 - Participation in management and client calls, including discussions on financial and transaction-related topics with legal advisors and company representatives
- Business Development
 - Research and tracking of Insurance (distribution) M&A activity in DACH markets
 - Supported sector research, benchmarking and market mapping initiatives across the insurance brokerage sector
 - Supported preparation of pitch presentations for meetings with owner-led businesses

Performance Evaluation

Throughout the internship, Mr. Doležal consistently distinguished himself through an exceptional ability to quickly grasp complex matters, outstanding analytical capabilities, and an excellent understanding of financial and transactional concepts. Even highly complex transaction-related tasks were handled in a structured, precise, and highly professional manner within very short timeframes.

Particularly noteworthy were his high level of commitment, resilience, and professional demeanor, especially during demanding project situations and under significant time pressure. Mr. Doležal worked at all times in a highly diligent, efficient, and independent manner. He completed all assigned tasks to our fullest satisfaction and consistently exceeded our expectations in every respect.

In addition, Mr. Doležal demonstrated excellent teamwork and communication skills as well as a highly professional presence in interactions with colleagues, senior professionals, and external counterparties. His conduct was exemplary at all times.

Both professionally and personally, Mr. Doležal was a highly valued member of our team. We would like to thank him for his consistently outstanding performance and greatly regret his departure. We wish him continued success and all the best for his future professional and personal endeavors.
